Avoid These Common Pain-Causing Moves

From the moment you get out of bed in the morning to turning off the light at night, your body moves in countless directions.

Unfortunately, even some of the most basic movements you make can cause pain or leave lasting damage on the body. Move better, longer with these tips:

The Movement: Sitting

The Problem: Remaining sedentary for several hours over several years can lead to higher blood pressure, cardiovascular disease, and other chronic health conditions.

The Fix: Create conditions that keep you from sitting. For example, use a standing desk, conduct meetings while walking instead of sitting, and avoid sitting when doing leisure activities like watching television (stand, or lie down). At the very least, stand up and stretch at least once every 30 minutes.

The Movement: Moving heavy objects in high places

The Problem: Lifting excess weight above your head — especially at an unusual angle — strains the shoulders, neck, and back.

The Fix: Place any frequently used heavy objects on lower shelves for easy access. Use a step stool to reach any objects placed on high shelves.

The Movement: Carrying bags on a single shoulder

The Problem: Any time you place a heavy object like a grocery bag, purse, or backpack on a single shoulder, it causes a muscle imbalance that can injure the spine over time.

The Fix: Incorporate back-, shoulder-, and chest-strengthening exercises into your daily routine. Use a backpack that evenly distributes weight across the shoulders, back, and hips. If you must use a single-shoulder bag, carry less to lighten the load and alternate sides when carrying the bag.

Stay Motivated When Working From Home

Over the past several years, increased access to technology and an interest in more flexible work schedules has led more people to work from home. Approximately 5.2% of U.S. workers worked from home full time in 2017 — a number that increased 3.3% since 2000 — and that number will probably increase even more as statistics are calculated after recent developments where far more workers are working remotely.

Despite the benefits, it's possible to feel overwhelmed and unmotivated in a remote work environment, but you can set yourself up for success.

- Establish a routine, including boundaries with co-workers. Be clear with your supervisor what hours you need to be "at work," and make sure colleagues are aware of those working hours. Get up in the morning with a "go to work" mindset. Set up a workday routine (including breaks) and stick to it. Do not respond to work-related issues after hours.
- Separate work and home life. Set up a workspace with the materials you need to do your job and spend your workday in that space. Let any family members know when you are working and insist that they avoid distracting you. At the end of the day, clean up your desk, shut off your computer, and step away from your at-home office.
- Dress for success. You aren't going to an office, but you should dress like you are. Putting on work-related clothes puts you in a work-related mindset.
- Get moving — and stay social. Exercising and socializing with other people come naturally when you're walking around a workplace setting, but they require extra attention and effort when working from home. Even if you have to socialize with some distance, both are critical for your health and wellbeing.

Discard Old Paint

Leftover paint should not be poured down drains or put in the trash. Where can you take paint for disposal instead?

- Some local branches of Habitat for Humanity ReStore (Habitat.org) offer latex paint recycling.
- Ask local theatre troupes and scouting groups if they can use the paint for projects.
- PaintCare (PaintCare.org) and Earth911 (Earth911.com) list recycling facilities.
- Check your state and local environmental conservation departments for waste collection events.

Surprising Taxable Items

Filing taxes can be a daunting task, especially since the IRS is keen to take advantage of any taxable opportunity available. Though the tax code changes every year (check IRS.gov for the latest updates), these are a few things people are surprised to learn are taxable.

- Employer perks or bonuses. Cash bonuses added to your paycheck are automatically taxed, but sizeable gifts, including physical items and incentive travel, are subject to tax withholding and FICA taxes.
- Home rental. Using a platform like Airbnb.com to rent your home out for more than 15 days is taxable. Depending on where the home is located, it might be subject to additional local and state taxes as well.
- Unemployment income. If you collect unemployment, it is subject to taxes depending on the state in which you live. Minimize taxes by having them deducted when you receive unemployment payments.

Kitchen Cabinets Pre-Painting Tips

Giving kitchen cabinets a fresh coat of paint can keep one of the most popular rooms in your house looking fresh. These are the prep steps to take before painting.

- 1. Give yourself adequate time. Prepping to paint kitchen cabinets takes almost as long as the painting itself. The whole process will likely take four to seven days.
- 2. Completely clear the space. Empty the drawers and cabinets. Remove or cover all appliances and counters.
- 3. Remove doors and drawers. Make it easy to put them back in their proper places by writing matching numbers on the insides/bottoms and their corresponding cabinet shells.
- 4. Remove hardware from the cabinets. This includes all hinges.
- 5. Clean the cabinets with grease remover. This is also a good time to clean all the hardware.
- 6. Sand the cabinets. Use a 150 or 200 grit sandpaper. Completely wipe all grit away before painting.
- 7. Add primer. This seals the cabinets and preps them for the painting process. Now- you're ready to paint!

Thinking about putting your pet on an airplane? Generally speaking, vets advise against doing this, but if your pet must fly, keep the following in mind:

- Check airline regulations and book far in advance.
- Consider using a pet transport service to manage logistics.
- Visit the vet to make sure your pet is healthy enough to fly.
- Avoid drugging your pet.
- Make sure your pet has a microchip.

Real Estate Corner...

Q. Can I use a financial gift from a friend or relative as a down payment on buying a home?

A. Yes. In fact, one out of four first-time homebuyers uses a gift to make the down payment.

Tax law allows gifts of up to $15,000 a year in 2020 without tax consequences to the giver or recipient. (The amount is adjusted annually so search IRS.gov for "gift tax" for the current figure.) You could get a gift from two parents or two friends (for $30,000) without paying a gift tax.

Using a gift for a down payment helps you buy a home even if it's not Federal Housing Administration (FHA)-approved. The best advice is to contact a knowledgeable REALTOR® and discuss this subject before you start looking for homes.
